
Each square is one image; a row is the images photographed from one specimen.